At some point in our lives, we will all face the realities of end-of-life care. Being informed about your options ahead of time can make all the difference when navigating difficult decisions. Many people worry about becoming a burden, losing control, dignity, or the ability to make choices for themselves. Hospice care is designed to address these concerns, helping individuals remain at home while prioritizing quality of life.

Join us for this FREE interactive panel discussion with experts from Hospice of the Valley as they bring clarity to a topic that is often overlooked but deeply important.
